Tiverton | History

Tiverton, the 'two-ford-town', owes its name to its location between the Rivers Exe and Lowman. The town came to prominence and prosperity through the wool and lace-making trade in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries.

St George's Court is situated on the eastern bank of the Exe on what was formerly tennis courts.

London architects Mikhail Riches won the prestigious commission to design the scheme and have produced an award-winning design which successfully combines all of the attributes of the Tiverton town centre conservation area with the very best of modern living.
