GARDENS & GROUNDS AND LAND

The gardens at High Bracken Hill are a delight, being thoughtfully landscaped and planted to create separate areas of interest.

To the immediate front lies an Indian stone terrace, which faces south and enjoys a lovely view across the gardens and beyond. The front garden has planted up with borders which combine year-round colour and interest, spring bulbs, flowering perennials and a range of shrubs. This is framed within stone walls and terraces including a pond fed by a small brook that trickles through the garden.

At the far end lies a productive soft fruit and vegetable garden, enclosed by rabbit proof fences to all sides. A high specification cedar green house with matching cold frame and water butt, sits upon this portion of garden. Further potting shed/garage with electric light and power. A lawned garden extends around the side and rear of the house, leading up to a leading up to a large grassed area formally a riding arena. A productive orchard complements this truly sustainable property.

In all, the property amounts to approximately 13.8 acres and comprises a nice mix of grazing and edge of moorland with some mature and more recently established trees and stream.

The land as a whole has been managed for environmental benefit. The area to the north of the house and garden is home to a variety of wildlife and offers amenity and conservation value, with a pond, orchard area and a wild haven with numerous trees and two ancient oaks.
