Cricklade is a town and parish located on the River Thames in North Wiltshire, ideally placed between the neighbouring larger towns of Swindon & Cirencester. It is also known as the first downstream town on the Thames.

Cricklade boasts a thriving community with a bustling high street with a variety of traders and high street stores. There is a dispensing chemist, doctors' surgery, optician, and dentist. There are also several eateries and drinking establishments as well as artisan butchers.

The North Meadow is also a popular destination with the Water Meadow and the famous snake headed fritillaries (SSSI) this is also a (NNR) national nature reserve.
