Tell me about Hayling Island

Located on the south coast of England, close to the historic city of Portsmouth, Hayling Island is bordered by both Chichester and Langstone harbours. It has three miles of beaches along its seafront on the Solent and unsurprisingly Hayling Island is well known for inventing wind surfing.

Situated south of Havant in Hampshire between Portsmouth and Emsworth, Hayling Island has always appealed to holiday makers and families and retains all the attractions of a traditional seaside resort.

How Connected?

With mainline railway stations, regional airports, sea ports and main motorway links very close by, Hayling Island is the ideal location for busy commuters and those that like to travel.

Things to do in Hayling Island

Hayling Island's three main beaches have won both the European Blue Flag and the Keep Britain Tidy Group Seaside Award Flag and are greatly enjoyed by those who love the beach as well as walkers and nature lovers.

Children and young people will never be short of things to do on Hayling Island and will love the roller coaster rides at the Funland Amusement Park while the East Hayling Light Railway offers a ten-minute train ride along the seafront.

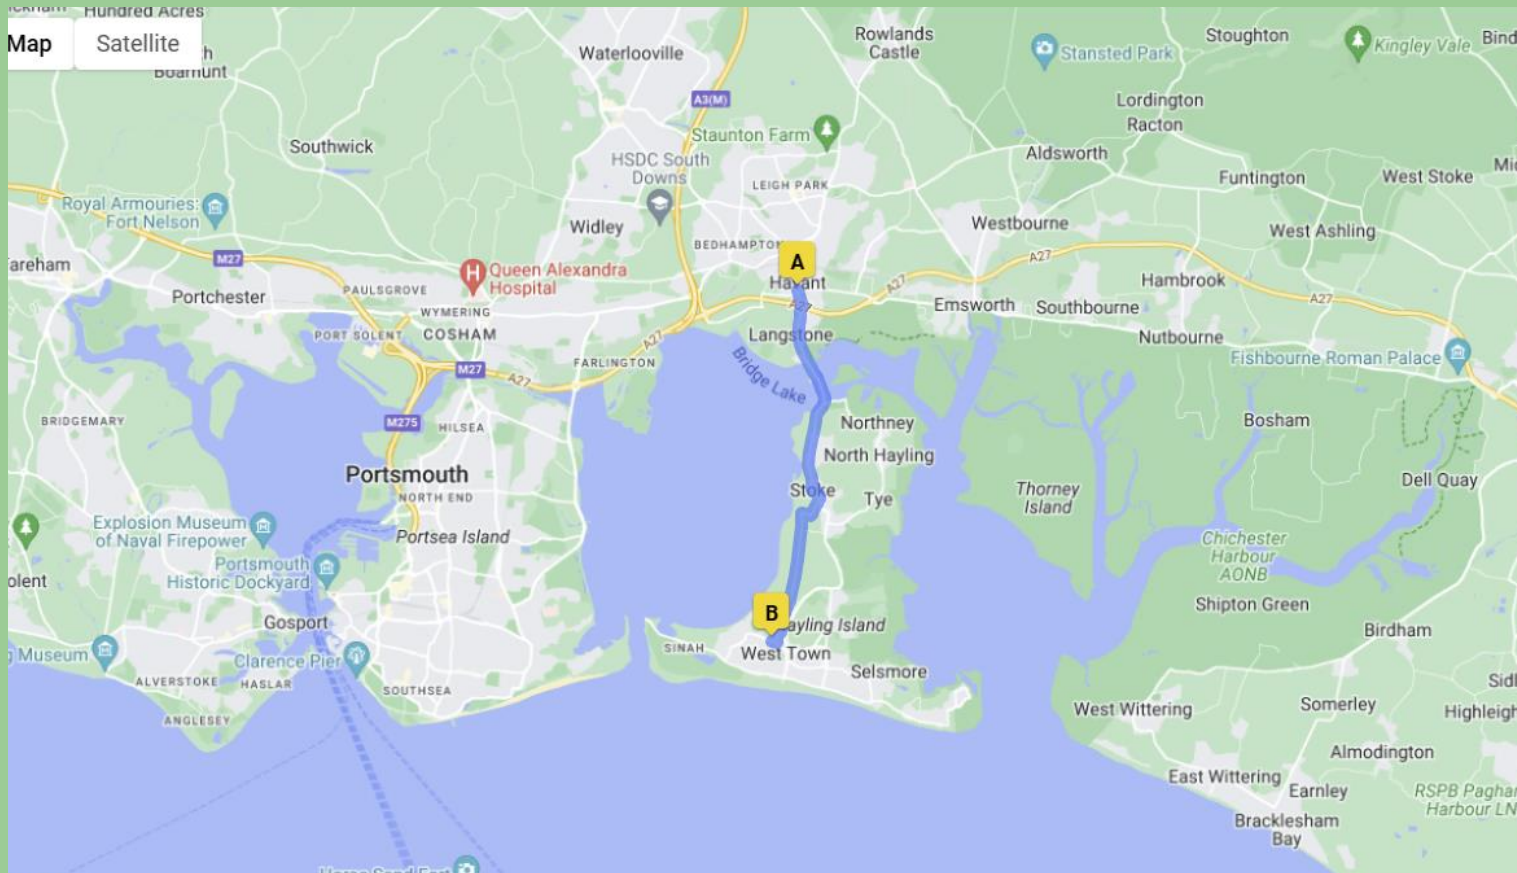

Staunton Country Park is a gem just outside of Havant, with amazing gardens, a tropical glass house and an Amazonian water lily. Fun for all the family can be found on the ornamental farm with the friendly farmyard animals.

The pretty market town of Emsworth is nestled on Hampshire's border within 10 minutes drive of Hayling Island. It is a delightful town with narrow streets, a harbourside, charming pubs, restaurants and specialist shops.
