Description

Challoner House is a former Victorian warehouse that has been beautifully refurbished and designed by Akelius and HUT Architecture.

Challoner House was originally built in the late 1860's for Knight & Hawkes, type founders when Clerkenwell was buzzing with printing and engraving industries. The building was named after Sir Thomas Challoner, a courtier and gentleman of the Privy Chamber, and was one of the favourites of James I and appointed governor to the King's heir, Prince Henry.

The project has retained and restored the original features of the building, while introducing sustainable interventions including a new biodiverse green roof and PV panels. Challoner House is targeting BREEAM Excellent.

The building can offer space from 2,772 sq ft up to 5,619 sq ft.
