Blending Character And Contemporary

If you love period properties but you don't want a project, you'll love this. All the hard work has been done for you! Soft grey elevations invite you to explore and straight away you'll notice the roof terrace and want to check out the views. The layout has been carefully considered to offer an open plan feel whilst retaining distinct rooms, creating a home that's easy to live in. As practical as it is attractive, this home would suit a family with older children who can embrace the independence of the central location, or an active retired couple who want to immerse themselves in the community, young professionals who want a characterful and spacious but low maintenance home, or even as a place to take your holidays.

KEY FEATURES

Lovely And Light-Filled

You come into the centre of the property and find yourself in a stunning kitchen, dining and family room that's a very good size indeed. There's plenty of storage and preparation space for keen cooks, plus space for a family table. You can imagine preparing dinner for friends whilst chatting over a drink, enjoying suppers that last late into the night. There's even room for seating in here if you choose. The room is part open to the sitting room, which creates a comfortable flow and means that you can look through from the kitchen and take in the view from the other end of the house. Sliding doors and a Juliet balcony frame the outlook from the sitting room and, being south facing, allow the light to pour in. There's a useful office and cloakroom on this floor too. Head up the stairs and you'll find three bedrooms and a bathroom off the landing. Two of the bedrooms are doubles and the principal bedroom has doors onto a large roof terrace.

Stunning Surroundings

The roof terrace has an incredible view, out across the treetops and over the Mere to the other side, the skies above painted with magnificent sunrises and sunsets. This really is the best seat in the house! Whilst there's no lawned garden here, the roof terrace provides safe and sunny outside space and would look beautiful with a few pots of colourful flowers, plus it's super easy to maintain and ideal if you want a 'lock up and leave' property. It also has an external metal staircase round the side from the ground floor up to the roof terrace. When you fancy a change of scene, you can enjoy lunch at one of the waterside restaurants, wander the boardwalk, watch the birds, do a spot of shopping, hop on the train and head to London – it's all so easy from here. You don't even need a car – everything is on the doorstep.
