INTRODUCTION: THE LATE FELIX DENNIS (1947 - 2014)

Felix Dennis in the Sunken Garden at The Old Manor

Born in 1947 in south-west London, Felix Dennis inherited his energy and work ethic from his mother who became a chartered accountant to support him and his brother Julian. Despite demonstrating academic promise, Felix left school at 15 to become a drummer and briefly attended Harrow College of Art.

Felix was best known for his long and colourful career in magazine publishing which made him one of the richest men in Britain. He happily embraced new media and always ensured that he retained sole ownership of his company.

In 1999 he discovered a talent for poetry which remained a life-long passion and as compelling an obsession as making money. He became a highly regarded and popular poet who drew for inspiration on his love for the countryside around his home.

In 1987 he moved to The Old Manor in Dorsington which remained his much loved home until his death in 2014.

Felix's love of poetry was matched by his passion for trees. In 1989 he conceived a scheme to establish a wood of native lowland broad leaved trees. Over the years he acquired more land around The Old Manor and planted 300 acres annually until the total woodland area, now the Heart of England Forest, has reached 5,750 acres.

Having survived two life threatening illnesses, he was diagnosed with throat cancer in 2012 and died on 22nd June 2014 surrounded by his family. His legacy lives on in the Heart of England Forest, a charitable trust, which works to continue his vision of a large forest that is contiguous and joined up, not only for the benefit of those who will walk in it, work in it and enjoy it, but to provide corridors for native wildlife of every sort.

WARWICKSHIRE: SHAKESPEARE'S COUNTY

'When describing the county of Warwickshire, one metaphor has been repeated by travellers and writers across the centuries: it is, they say, 'the heart of England'. Some were referring mostly to its location straddling the main routes between the North and the South, the East and the West. But others meant something more: that in its landscape and its beauty, its combination of woodland and pasture, Warwickshire represented the essence of England, a microcosm of all that was best about the country.' (source: "Shakespeare's Scenery" by Robert Colvile)

LOT 1: THE OLD MANOR, DORSINGTON, WARWICKSHIRE

(SHADED PINK ON THE PLAN)

An immaculately presented quintessential Elizabethan country house, attractively set in gardens and grounds extending to almost 9 acres or thereabouts.

Comprising: entrance porch, reception/staircase hall, drawing room, dining room, kitchen/family room, cloakroom, rear porch, cross passage landing, master bedroom with dressing room/bathroom, guest bedroom with dressing room/bathroom, bedroom three with en suite bathroom, bedroom four, cellar/wine store and kitchenette.

In all about 9 acres or thereabouts. Further land may be available (for further details see page 32).

The Old Manor is a thatched house, partly timber framed and partly built of blue lias stone, with its origins dating back to the early sixteenth century. Situated at the southern end of the village of Dorsington and within the Conservation Area the property is Grade II Listed, being of Special Architectural or Historic Interest. Formerly five cottages known as Manor Cottages, the property was altered in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries and again in the mid twentieth century.

History suggests that today's Old Manor was once the main residence for Manor House Farm. The Old Manor is said to have been an important property and a former occupant someone of consequence in the parish. This is reflected in some of the structural changes made to the building between the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries including a lias stone addition to the south elevation, stone mullion windows and a stone wine cellar.

Internally there are many impressive wall and ceiling timbers throughout the accommodation which is arranged over two floors with the main rooms of the house having wonderful views over immediate gardens and grounds and the surrounding countryside. Accessed from a central porch is a welcoming reception hall with fireplace and fine oak staircase. At the southern end of the house is a charming triple aspect drawing room which widens into a projecting bay. There is a more intimate dining room with impressive inglenook fireplace which in turn links to a custom made kitchen/family room with dedicated areas for cooking, dining and seating. On the first floor accessed from a cross passage landing are four bedrooms; three are luxurious suites, each having slightly different aspects with far reaching views.

The style of the flat is architecturally sympathetic to The Old Manor having a decorative thatched roof with partly half-timbered elevation and attractive oriel windows. The flat provides useful one bedroom ancillary accommodation with garaging below adjacent to which are the central heating boilers for the main house.

LOT 1 - STAFF FLAT

Approximate Gross Internal Area = 138 sq m / 1485 sq ft

GARDENS & GROUNDS

The gardens and grounds are a particular feature of both The Old Manor and Highfield and have been commended in 'The Historic Gardens of Warwickshire' (Timothy Mowl and Diane James 2011).

The Old Manor is set behind immaculate clipped hedges and topiary creating an impressive entrance. The main garden faces west with a broad sweep of landscaped lawn having an impressive cedar tree. There is a sunken garden with a well-stocked pond hidden by castellated topiary. To the far corner of the garden is an idyllic summer house used as an office. A network of paths encompass the house and widen to form a small terrace off the drawing room. There is a further larger terrace partly beneath an overhanging jetty being close to the outdoor kitchenette and ideal for al fresco summer dining.

The gardens and grounds are protected by mature trees and shrubs to the boundaries on two sides whilst to the west a mature hedgerow divides the garden from a meadow.

Lying to the east of the house and on the opposite side of the lane is an excellent block of permanent pasture, dotted with trees in cages so to create a parkland effect.

The Old Manor is approached via two pairs of electrically operated decorative wrought iron gates which lead into a cobbled sweep forming an attractive in and out driveway and providing access to garaging.

SERVICES

Mains electricity, water and drainage are connected. LPG fired central heating. Telephone line subject to BT transfer regulations.

LOT 2: HIGHFIELD, DORSINGTON, WARWICKSHIRE

(SHADED BLUE ON THE PLAN)

“I built my soul a lordly pleasure-house wherein at ease for I to dwell” (Alfred, Lord Tennyson)

A spectacular leisure complex extending to over 12,000 sq ft with planning consent for change of use to residential

Comprising: vestibule with aquarium, pool area with seating areas, changing areas, main deck kitchen open to banqueting hall, captain's bedroom suite, gallery, sound proof gentleman's study, library, cinema, bar/entertainment area, plant room and garaging.

Built as a modern twenty-first century folly at a cost of almost £5,000,000, Highfield was commissioned by the late Felix Dennis who combined his passion for "Treasure Island" and his love of tithe barns to create a truly remarkable aisle barn. At the time of construction, Highfield was the biggest barn to be built of green oak for 300 years.

Highfield is subdivided into three distinct structures; the main pool area with its aisles and arcades and two additional wings which have been tied into the main building. The north wing houses the bedroom, bathroom, changing area, solarium, sauna, steam room and laundry room. The south wing accommodates the kitchen, banqueting hall, study and open gallery. The west elevation displays an almost alpine feel and there are fine pastoral views from the balcony.

Below ground the basement houses an authentic Art Deco inspired cinema and bar/entertainment area and a most impressive plant room which controls Highfield including high tech equipment for all of the major services – electrics, heating, filtration, lighting, security, telephone, air conditioning and dehumidifying all reside here alongside the underground parking area and turntable.

The front elevation is bold and dramatic with large columns either side the main entrance doors and feature two imposing sculptures that welcome you to the Treasure Island themed building. The playful nature of the property continues inside with palm trees, a crow's nest, a fish tank, a shipwrecked boat and rigging.

The accommodation totals over 12,000 sq ft and is fitted out to an exceptional standard by skilled craftsmen using the finest materials, such as Verona Italian marble and Lincoln sandstone, to create an “architectural adventure” displaying a vast array of artistic talent from the hand crafted mosaic designs in the pool to the clay mythical dragon on the main ridge and the exquisite shell panels that adorn the walls.

GARDENS & GROUNDS

Landscape designers worked with the estate gardeners to create varied gardens that enable Highfield to blend seamlessly into the surrounding landscape. Hardy climbers soften the red brick and timber weather boarding. Formal lawned areas surround the property with box hedging used to edge pathways and terraces constructed from a mixture of Ancaster stone, African slate and blue and buff Lincolnshire limestone.

To the west of Highfield and adjoining the gardens and grounds is a large permanent pasture paddock.

PLANNING PERMISSION

The property is subject to:-
