A single enclosure extending to approximately 1.7 acres in an elevated position, with far-reaching rural views of the surrounding area and towards the north Cornish coastline.

Guide Price: £ 65,000 Freehold

Situation

The land lies approximately 1.5 miles from the centre of the village of Praze-an-Beeble in an elevated position with far-reaching rural views.

The Land

Accessed from the minor county lane onto a hard standing, unmade track, the land is accessed via a galvanised gate and comprises a single level enclosure extending to approximately 1.7 acres or thereabouts bounded by traditional Cornish hedgebanks. The land is down to pasture and would be suitable for the grazing of animals, horticultural use or indeed camping under the Permitted Development Rights.

Within the area there are numerous bridlepaths in quiet country lanes for extensive riding out and both the north and south coast lie within easy reach.

A static caravan which has been used for dayroom/restroom facilities is positioned within the field, and no services are connected.

Agents Note: The vendor would consider retaining the static caravan and the ground it lies on if required and would consider offers on the guide price to reflect this.
