HISTORICAL INFORMATION

One of the Essex Suffolk Borders most significant and well known properties situated in the heart of Constable Country on the Southern edge of Stratford St Mary.

This striking timber frame house is Listed Grade II* as per the English Heritage list of significant buildings, the star rating is rare and only applies to the most significant properties. The house dates from the mid 1500's at a time when the reign of Henry the VIII was coming to an end. The name of the house suggests that part of it may have been used for weaving and as the history and status of the Stour valley was so closely linked to sheep farming this comes as no surprise.

The building itself is of predominantly timber frame construction within an "L-Shape" layout, the front elevation is jettied with moulded bressummer. The windows are of significance being ovolo mullions many of which are original but restored. Internally, noteworthy features continue with inglenook fire places, ovolo moulded beams, 17th century panelling and much more; our photographs show further details of the interior and exterior.

From information found in Country Life September 1945 we see the house was featured by the then owner Captain Blair Hughes-Stanton a well-known Suffolk artist who produced amongst many other works woodcarvings of particular note. He and Ida Graves undertook considerable restoration of the house throughout their ownership in the 1930's. We eagerly await the opportunity to show the house and set it on its next path of ownership and use.
