Ely is a small, beautiful and historic city nestled in the Fenland landscape and enjoys glorious waterfronts along the River Ouse and a well renowned traditional market. It has the advantages of a city but has the feel of a community-spirited village. Famous for its cathedral, 'The Ship of The Fens', although small, it is well served with major supermarkets, shops including many of which are independent, modern social and sporting facilities, traditional pubs restaurants as well as those more contemporary. There are many great schooling options including the well-regarded Kings School. An excellent mainline train station and proximity to major road networks makes Ely a great choice for commuters to Cambridge, surrounding areas and even to London.
