A Family Affair

Glenthorne was built in approximately 1930 as a wedding present by a father for his son and the property remained in the same family for seven decades, being purchased in 1963 by another relative who lived there until her death until 2003. She was a significant presence in Mattishall, managing the farming and haulage business of AJ Farrow & Sons which was the largest employer in the area for over seventy years. With no descendant to leave it to, Glenthorne passed to a beneficiary in her will, and it was transferred down through members of this second family until it was purchased from the family trust by the current owner's late husband in 2008. The original residence was then subject to major restoration work with several large extensions added to make it the family home it is today. He built the swimming pool and landscaped the gardens so significantly improving the grounds. He also constructed the bungalow annexe in order that his mother could live with the family.

All You Could Ask For

On entering the shingled drive, one is immediately struck by the grandeur and scale of the impressive front elevation of the property with the matched symmetry of its twin bays. Although its origins are in the early thirties with later additions and refinements, there is a strong undercurrent of Georgian architecture present in its balanced geometry. Moving in through the front door, the entrance hall is light and airy with a bespoke timber staircase and, at the end, the entrance into the kitchen with its adjacent dining room, very much the hub of the house. The kitchen has the benefit of a large utility room to one side and there is also access to the two ground floor bedrooms which both feature their own en-suite bathrooms.

Upstairs there are four further bedrooms, a home office, and a very spacious approximately 37 x 21 ft. family room. When asked about favourite spaces at the property, the present owner replied, "My favourite room is the snug front lounge with its beautiful open fireplace." By all accounts, it has been a wonderful family home. "We have had many special events in the house as it certainly lends itself to hosting friends and family due to all the room we have available here."

The Outside

The grounds are mainly laid to lawn with some mature trees and there are terraced areas adjacent to the property, which also has its own swimming pool, and a separate brick-built workshop with a WC and storage area. The countryside surrounding the grounds is spectacular. "I will miss the views and large open spaces – it has been a wonderful home," the owner said. "The property is a relaxing wildlife haven. I love looking out and seeing the deer in the fields and the pheasants."

The Cabins

With a different view in mind for the future which was a radical change from his profession of providing IT services for film and television productions, the owner's late husband set out to establish a family business which would take advantage of the ample grounds at Glenthorne. Originally in use as an office, the cabin at the bottom of the garden was turned into a rental cabin and christened Glengoyne. It proved to be so popular with business guests and holidaymakers, demonstrating there was no lack of demand for this type of accommodation and the business began to trade in earnest as Cabin Hideaways. Several years later a larger and more modern cabin called Glenfyne was built in the grounds, located further away from the main house so that the countryside views could be enjoyed to their full extent. Several months later, construction began on the third cabin, and Glenraig was completed in August 2022. The cabin names are inspired by single malt whisky brands. With the main house being called Glenthorne, the decision was taken to select names that continued in a similar vein and due to an appreciation of the drink, the names were selected that all began with Glen. The cabins each have kitchen facilities, showers and air conditioning; two of them have two double bedrooms accommodating four guests, while one has a single double bedroom accommodating two guests. There is also a private parking area for the cabins, with separate vehicular access.
