Westfield Lodge

Claverham, Bristol

Westfield Lodge has remained in the same family since 1981, when it was originally purchased as a collection of former stone farm buildings. Over the years, it has been meticulously transformed into a distinctive and exceptional home, featuring imaginative and flexible accommodation, primarily on a single level.

The original barns were cleverly connected to form a quadrangle centred around an inner courtyard with a sheltered terrace at its heart; a delightful suntrap. Elegantly presented throughout, it has a recently added magnificent oak-framed orangery with a series of bi-fold doors that bring the outside in allowing the interior of the home to be filled with natural light. The west wing of the property is designed to be easily converted into a fully self-contained annexe, making it ideal for dual occupation or a dependant relative.

Arriving into the central courtyard, a welcoming front door leads into to the hallway. Double doors open directly to the high-vaulted sitting room with French doors and views over the garden. Featuring an inglenook fireplace with log burner and an impressive galleried area above, it really does convey a sense of grandeur which is evident throughout the property.

A staircase rises to the spacious gallery landing which is the perfect place to relax and enjoy the long views. It provides access to the light and airy dual aspect principal bedroom with far reaching rural views and a glimpse of Yatton Church. An en-suite bathroom with roll top bath and separate shower and well-planned dressing area with lots of useful storage give this area a touch of luxury.

Returning to the sitting room a door leads through to the games room. Full of character, it has a beamed ceiling, another stone fireplace with log burner and bespoke fitted cabinetry providing shelving in the alcoves, a dresser and sideboard which all provide lots of useful storage. French doors from here open to the garden.

Off here can be found a suite comprising of shower room, reception and bedroom which thanks to independent access would make an ideal annexe or could offer potential for Air BnB STPP.

On the East side of the property a large office/study and family room provide a further two lovely reception rooms and lead through to the kitchen which has recently been remodelled. It is a wonderful space with blue and cream painted wooden units, a matching dresser, a four-oven British racing Green AGA, island with integrated wine racks and a porcelain tiled floor by Mandarin that extends through to the spectacular orangery. 42ft long with green oak timbering and a run of bifold windows which open to the central courtyard of the property this stunning space offers a great opportunity entertaining family and friends.

Completing the accommodation is a superb guest bedroom suite with bedroom and bathroom and its own separate access to the outside.

Outside

The expansive driveway, secured by electric gates, leads to two garages and offers ample parking for both residents and visitors. The meticulously maintained gardens are primarily situated to the east of the house, with a south-facing aspect. A large, level lawn is surrounded by mature trees and hedgerows, providing privacy and beauty. Well-stocked herbaceous borders add vibrant colour, while raised shrubbery beds contribute further visual interest. Two paved areas offer ample space for outdoor dining and entertaining.
