WHERE HISTORY MEETS
COUNTRYSIDE CHARM

Letheringsett is a picturesque and historic village set in the heart of North Norfolk, offering a perfect balance of rural tranquillity and accessibility. Surrounded by rolling countryside, farmland, and the gentle meandering waters of the River Glaven, the village boasts a quintessentially English charm. Despite its peaceful setting, Letheringsett benefits from being just a mile from the popular Georgian market town of Holt, where a variety of independent shops, boutiques, galleries, cafés, and restaurants provide a vibrant local scene.

One of Letheringsett's most notable landmarks is its fully operational watermill, the last working watermill in Norfolk, which continues to produce traditional stone-ground flour. This historic site, along with the village's pretty flint cottages and scenic landscapes, contributes to its enduring appeal. The award-winning King's Head pub is another highlight, offering locally sourced food and a warm, welcoming atmosphere, making it a favourite among both residents and visitors.

The surrounding countryside provides excellent opportunities for walking, cycling, and wildlife spotting, with numerous footpaths leading through woodlands, meadows, and along the river. Just a short drive away, the renowned North Norfolk coastline offers breathtaking scenery, vast sandy beaches, and Areas of Outstanding Natural Beauty, including Blakeney National Nature Reserve, famous for its seal colonies and birdwatching. Nearby, the coastal villages of Cley-next-the-Sea and Wells-next-the-Sea provide charming harbours, artisan shops, and fresh seafood.

Letheringsett is a highly desirable location for those looking to enjoy the very best of Norfolk's countryside and coastline.
