Why you'll like it

This three-bedroom terraced house in Keighley is offered for sale and presents a practical option for first-time buyers and investors. The property is in good condition and arranged over three levels, including an attic double bedroom and a useful cellar providing additional storage.

On the ground floor, a separate reception room with a large window offers a bright living space. The kitchen includes built-in pantries, dining space and good natural light, with direct access to the rear yard, which provides an outdoor area for seating or storage. The first floor comprises a double bedroom, a single bedroom and a family bathroom with shower over bath. A further double attic bedroom completes the accommodation.

The house is well placed for Keighley town centre amenities, including supermarkets, shops, cafés and local services. Nearby green spaces and parks offer opportunities for walking and recreation.

Public transport connections are convenient. Keighley railway station provides regular services to Leeds and Bradford, with typical journey times of around 30–40 minutes, as well as services towards Skipton and the Airedale line. Local bus routes operate within walking distance, linking surrounding neighbourhoods and nearby towns.

Schools, primary and secondary, are available within the wider Keighley area, making this location suitable for households seeking access to education and local facilities. Overall, this three-bedroom terraced house combines practical internal space, a rear yard and cellar, with access to transport links, green spaces and town centre amenities.
