Amidst properties of a similarly high calibre, the house is set in a quiet, private road within only a short walk of the village and the station with its frequent services to London. Nearby, the A217 is an arterial route to London and within a few minutes connects with the M25 at Reigate bringing both Heathrow and Gatwick within easy reach. This part of the Surrey Hills has a great choice for schooling and many venues for sport, leisure and cultural pursuits including Kingswood's village restaurants and gastro-pub, tennis club and two golf courses. There are open country and woodland walks just at the end of the road. Seldom available, an individual new house set in half an acre and combining traditional gravitas and chic, contemporary sophistication. Ideally designed for today's family lifestyle, the house has so much to offer for luxury living and simple maintenance. The established gardens are secluded and there is ample parking in addition to the double garage. Viewing highly recommended.
