Description of property

Maugersbury Manor is an important and impressive Grade II Listed former manor house and is mentioned in the Pevsner Architectural Guide for the Cotswolds. It is a magnificent building with an impressive front façade. It is constructed of natural Cotswold stone under a natural Cotswold stone tiled roof with protruding gabled Entrance Porch and attractive fenestration with mullion windows, some of which have cutstone surrounds and drip moulds with Diocletian windows below the roofline. The rear of the house is as equally impressive with a large patio and enclosed garden beyond.

Maugersbury Manor forms the major part of the building and has been separated into the primary dwelling.

The property is currently in need of modernisation and offers a fantastic opportunity to create an historical village house.

History

Maugersbury Manor is a Grade II Listed building of historical and architectural interest. According to Pevsner it is thought that the house is probably situated on the site of a house belonging to Evesham Abbey recorded in 1402. The existing house was rebuilt for the Chamberlain family between 1658 and 1676.

The three storey porch with hipped roof is entered through a 13th Century doorway believed to have been removed from the Malthouse in Digbeth Street, Stow-on-the-Wold, in 1864. The roof was thought to have been raised in circa 1794 to allow for the present depressed Diocletian windows.

More recently, Maugersbury Manor has been used as a school.

Gardens and Grounds

There is an impressive entrance via cutstone pillars and drystone walls to the property with the circular drive leading to the front.

Situated behind Yew hedging, Espalier, Holm Oak, Cotswold stone drystone walls Maugersbury Manor offers a huge amount of impact on first impressions.

To the rear, there is a charming and mature enclosed walled garden principally laid to lawn.

There is also a separate access to the rear garden to the north of the property.
