Location

Aberdesach is a small hamlet situated along this beautiful stretch of Wales' northern coastline. The hamlet's beach is mainly shingle, opening to beautiful flat sands as the tide retreats. If strolls along the beach and fine sea views are your thing then this is the place to be. The entire area is enveloped by spectacular scenery with the coastline and Irish Sea to one side, the magnificent Snowdonia mountain range and Snowdon on the other. Your main shopping destination will be the historic town of Caernarfon, which has supermarkets, high street shopping, numerous independent traders within the 13th century castle walls, as well as a wealth of leisure facilities, a theatre, schools and the Welsh Highland Railway. The nearby A499 also runs towards Pwllheli and the stunning Llyn Peninsula whilst the Snowdonia National Park can be easily accessed from this locality including Snowdon via the hidden gem of the Nantlle valley.
